General Course Information

Description

A composition course that develops writing skills beyond the levels of proficiency required by ENGL 1101, that emphasizes interpretation and evaluation, and that incorporates a variety of more advanced research methods. Develops communication skills in networked electronic environments, emphasizes interpretation and evaluation of cultural texts, and incorporates research methods in print and on the Internet.

Course Learning Outcomes

Learning Goal A1: Communication

Student will demonstrate proficiency in the process of articulating and organizing rhetorical arguments in written, oral, visual, and nonverbal modes, using concrete support and conventional language.

The following concepts are the core of the WCP program and are common to every course and every section. You will understand, practice, and develop confidence in articulating skills within these critical concepts. The goals below are distillations of the rules and guidelines provided at this link by the USG Board of Regents, the Council of Writing Program Administrators, and additional expectations set by the GT Writing & Communications Program.

Rhetorical Knowledge Rhetorical knowledge focuses on the available means of persuasion, considering factors such as context, audience, purpose, genre, medium, and conventions.	Use with purpose key rhetorical concepts through analyzing and composing a variety of multimodal (written, oral, visual, electronic, and nonverbal—WOVEN) artifacts. These concepts include: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Rhetorical situation: purpose, audience, context• Argumentation in multiple modes• Genre• Affordances of mode, medium, technology• Multimodal synergy Gain experience reading/viewing/listening and composing in several genres to understand how genre conventions shape

	and are shaped by readers'/users' and writers'/designers' practices and purposes Develop facility in responding to a variety of situations and contexts calling for purposeful shifts in voice, tone, level of formality, design, medium, and/or structure Understand the social contexts of multimodal communication
Critical Thinking, Writing, and Composing Critical thinking is the ability to analyze, synthesize, interpret, and evaluate ideas, information, sources, situations, and texts.	Use composing and reading/viewing/listening for inquiry, learning, critical thinking, and communicating in various rhetorical contexts Interpret a diverse range of multimodal artifacts, attending especially to relationships between assertion and evidence, to patterns of organization, to the interplay among multimodal elements, and to how these features function for different audiences and situations Conduct primary and secondary research, integrating expert sources and data into multimodal projects Locate and evaluate (for credibility, sufficiency, accuracy, timeliness, bias and so on) primary and secondary research materials, including journal articles and essays, books, scholarly and professionally established and maintained databases or archives, and informal electronic networks and internet sources
Processes Writers use multiple strategies, or composing processes, to conceptualize, develop, finalize, and distribute projects. Composing processes are recursive and adaptable in relation to different rhetorical situations.	Understand that multimodal composition is a process Develop a multimodal project through multiple stages Develop flexible strategies for multimodal composition, reviewing, collaborating, revising, production, and dissemination Use composing processes and tools as a means to discover and reconsider ideas Experience the collaborative and social aspects of multimodal composition processes Learn to give and to act on productive feedback to works in progress

	Reflect on the development of composing practices and how those practices influence the work students produce
Modes, Media, and Technology Composition occurs in multiple modes: Written, Oral, Visual, Electronic, and Nonverbal (WOVEN). Likewise, composition uses a range of technologies and media to develop and disseminate its messages.	Match the affordances of different modes and media to varying rhetorical situations Adapt composing processes for a variety of technologies and modalities Understand and use a variety of technologies to address a range of audiences
Knowledge of Conventions Conventions are the formal rules and informal guidelines that define genres, and in so doing, shape readers' and writers' perceptions of correctness or appropriateness.	Understand why genre conventions for structure, design, tone, and mechanics vary Gain experience negotiating variations in genre conventions Learn common formats and/or design features for different genres of multimodal artifacts Practice applying citation conventions systematically in their own work

Grading Policy:

Incorporated within these Artifacts collaboration grades, grades given to process documents like proposals, article approval, drafts, and peer review, so the final artifact itself that you or y'all present is never 100% of that final grade.

- Artifact 0: First Week Diagnostic Video: 5%
- Artifact 1: Memoir Project: 20%
- Artifact 2: Individual Monument Project: 25%
- Artifact 3: Collaborative Podcast Project: 27.5%
- Class Participation Grade: 7.5%
- Final Portfolio: 15%

Description of Graded Components

Artifact 0: In this assignment, you will create a 60-90 second video to introduce yourself, identify the course you are taking, and articulate a challenge you anticipate facing in the coming semester of ENGL 1102.

Artifact 1: You will compose a memoir indirectly defining the idea of belonging or authenticity without using the words belonging, belong, belongs, belonged, etc. or authenticity, authentic, etc. You will define this by speaking to an event, moment, situation, or narrative in your life that emblemizes a time, place, event, or experience in which you felt like you did and/or did not belong.

Artifact 2: Narrate the history and story of two chosen monuments / memorials, using plentiful context and analysis to convince us about these spaces' messages intentional, explicit, unintentional, or implicit.

Artifact 3: The ultimate end of this "unit" consists of you and an interdisciplinary group of your peers composing an informative, educational, entertaining (infotainment) podcast episode of 15-20 minutes in length that focuses on an issue, problem, concept, or idea relative to the Atlanta, Georgia, or the US South. Along the way, you will embed yourself in your "discourse community" (your major, intended major, profession, etc.) by learning about its rhetorical practices and values, locate and understand peer-reviewed academic research, procure fictional funding through a simple "grant proposal," and learn to project research outward to a general audience by emphasizing stakes and impact.

While, due to your roles in the podcast group, you may not have the chance to draw on that disciplinary perspective within the podcast episode, you will at least put into practice strategies for reading and understanding the privileged genres of your discourse community (academic or professional discipline). To accomplish these goals, we must approach this final podcast in stages and practice in multiple genres.

Final Portfolio: Provide a collection of your major projects throughout this semester. In addition, you will narrate your processes, improvements, and challenges in communication, meeting assignment goals and how you achieved course learning outcomes, synthesizing content we've already built throughout the semester.

Course Policies

Attendance and/or Participation

Writing and Communication Program courses require students to be active in engaging with their courses. This engagement takes different forms depending on the instructor's expectations and requirements for the course. Students should attend, participate, and engage in the course according to the instructor's requirements, as indicated on the course syllabus.

Absences

As this is a two-day a week course, students may not miss more than four classes. The first four absences are automatically excused. Exceeding four absences will result in an automatic deduction of the final course grade by 10% per unexcused absence. An absence is excused when the Dean of Students Office provides me with proper documentation. I do not accept pictures of doctor's notes or thermometers. Certified medical professionals and their office will need to email me with confirmation, which you can usually get through the health center if you make an appointment and visit them.

I call attendance at the beginning of each class, and if I don't register a student as in attendance, the student will be marked as absent. If you are tardy, you must talk to me after class to make sure you were marked in attendance.

Tardiness

Tardiness is distracting. Often, our class activities must begin by the beginning of class because we have a LOT to cover! Accumulating three tardies will result in an automatic absence that will go toward your absence count and will negatively impact class participation grades.

Tardies also negatively impact your participation grade in the course. The Participation grade is assessed weekly is worth 7.5% of your grade.

Class Participation

Class Participation is contingent on both attendance, prompt arrival, and also involvement in completing homework assignments and being participatory in class in a variety of ways. Be involved in class discussions, group assignments, in class work, and complete out of class assignments, readings, and reflections, and be attentive to the computer, phone, headphone, and dress code policy, and you will do just fine. Failure to complete a week's assignments will usually result in this being given an "incomplete" grade.

As a class about writing and communication, you will be expected to communicate and participate in a variety of ways. You should expect to engage regularly in a variety of in-class activities and exercises—oral, visual, and written, and individual and collaborative.

In class activities may include:

- Discussions about readings, assignments, and artifacts where you share your insights, answer questions offered to the class, and positively engage with classmates in these discussions.
- Free writing activities and occasional low- to no-stakes quizzes
- Workshops, including collaborative planning, in-class designing/writing, feedback on works in progress, peer reviewing, and peer editing.
- Various kinds of oral presentations and improvisation lessons for verbal and non-verbal communication

- Listening to and asking questions of guest speakers
- Watching and responding to videos, examples, demonstrations

Academic Integrity

Georgia Tech aims to cultivate a community based on trust, academic integrity, and honor. Students are expected to act according to the highest ethical standards. Review Georgia Tech's Honor Code and the student Code of Conduct.

Any student suspected of cheating or plagiarism on a quiz, exam, or assignment will be reported to the Office of Student Integrity, who will investigate the incident and identify the appropriate penalty for violations.

Core IMPACTS

This is a Core IMPACTS course that is part of the Communication in Writing area.

Core IMPACTS refers to the core curriculum, which provides students with essential knowledge in foundational academic areas. This course will help master course content, and support students' broad academic and career goals.

This course should direct students toward a broad Orienting Question:

- How do I write effectively in different contexts?

Completion of this course should enable students to meet the following Learning Outcome:

- Students will communicate effectively in writing, demonstrating clear organization and structure, using appropriate grammar and writing conventions.
- Students will appropriately acknowledge the use of materials from original sources.
- Students will adapt their written communications to purpose and audience.
- Students will analyze and draw informed inferences from written texts.

Course content, activities and exercises in this course should help students develop the following Career-Ready Competencies:

- Critical Thinking
- Information Literacy
- Persuasion

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

If you are a student with learning needs that require special accommodation, contact the Office of Disability Services (404-894-2563) as soon as possible to make an appointment to discuss your special needs and to obtain an accommodations letter. Please also e-mail me as soon as possible in order to set up a time to discuss your learning needs.

Student-Faculty Expectations Agreement

At Georgia Tech, we believe that it is important to strive for an atmosphere of mutual respect, acknowledgement, and responsibility between faculty members and the student body. The Student-Faculty Expectations articulate some basic expectations that you can have of me and that I have of you. In the end, simple respect for knowledge, hard work, and cordial interactions will help build the environment we seek. Therefore, I encourage you to remain committed to the ideals of Georgia Tech while in this class.

Other policies may or will be added by the start date of classes and will be accessible in the course Canvas page. The instructor reserves the right to change the syllabus to meet course descriptions and learning goals and outcomes.
